

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A chip-type LED including a LED element and a tubular vessel accommodating the LED element therein,
5 wherein the vessel has an upper opening and a lower opening, the LED element is positioned between the upper opening and the lower opening such that the LED element emits light toward the upper opening, and the vessel is filled with a light-transmissive resin from the upper opening to the lower 10 opening.